THAW'S CORRESPONDENCE SENT. Pittsburg, Feb. 28.—Acting upon the advice of Hartridge and Peabody of counsel for Harry K. Thaw, on trial for the murder of Stanford White, J. D. Lyon, vice president of the Union National bank, this morning sent to New York the correspondence which Thaw had carried on with the bank since June, 1906. Mr. Lyon has hesitated about sending this correspondence, and wrote to Dist. Atty. Jerome asking for instructions.

Today he received a letter from Thaw's counsel stating that there was no objection to forwarding the letters and the package was at once sent to New York.

STROTHER TRIAL.

Story of the Defense the Center of Interest in Today's Proceedings.

culpepper, Va., Feb. 28.—The expected story of the defense from the lips of the defendant's in the trial of James and Phillip Strother, charged with the murder of William F. Bywaters, their brother-in-law, last December, was the center of interest in today's developments in that case.

Mrs. Bywaters, who lay ill in bed when the shooting occurred, in her pathetic story upon the stand yesterday, said her recollection of the events connected with the tragedy was hazy.

Mrs. Gaines, her sister, testified that she saw Phillip fire the first shot at Bywaters, which statement Phillip Strother has already corroborated. Mrs. Bywaters has sworn that her betrayal was under promise of marriage, that she pleaded with Eywaters to make honorable reparation, and she has told the story of their trips to Washington for the criminal operation which she decembed his indifferent treatment of for the criminal operation which she dreaded, his indifferent treatment of her, the forced marriage, his attempted flight, and in a general way, the shooting that followed.

Soon after forms.

A. Strother, one of the defendants, was called as a witness. He was permitted to tell the story of his sister's wrongs. Although at times visibly affected by the strain under which he has labored since Bywaters was killed, he related the relations between the dead man and his sister in straightforward manner.

a straightforward manner.

Bywaters agreed to marry Viola, witness said, when told he must do so after her condition became known to the family, but after the ceremony Bywaters became indifferent to Viola. He became abusive when a demand was made that he remain with Viola on the night of the tragedy.

He detailed the quarrel between Mrs. Gaines, her husband, and Bywaters, in which Bywaters insisted that he must go to Culpepper that night. Bywaters left them, going to Viola's 10001.

"I told him that we intended to watch him to see that he did not get away. He sprang from Viola's side, tearing himself from her arms and made a dash for the rear door. "What happened then?" asked the prosecutor.

"The next thing I heard was a shot. Phillip fired at Bywaters as he randown the stairs."

Did you fire on him while he was in "My recollection is that we fired just as he climbed out of the window. We did not fire until we knew he had gotten out of the window.

A pathetic interlude in the testimony came when the defendant after completing his story of the tragedy, told of his mother's admonition to him her death bed "to always protect our Notable Event Takes Place in the Lion House Dining Hall.

ANNIVERSARY OF 79TH YEAR.

Women's Press Club Tenders One of Utah's Foremost Mothers a Banquet and Congratulations.

A notable event took place yesterday at the Lion House when the Utah Womans Press club tendered its founder. Mrs. Emmeline B. Wells a banquet in celebration of her 79th birthday.

Two large tables were laid in the dining hall and decorated in the club colors, purple and green, each table having for a centerpiece a potted purple cynerea draped with dainty crepe paper in the purple and green, while at each plate were place-cards in the form of double hearts which were handdecorated and hand-written by Mrs. Maria Francis, with sentiments from the poems of the guest of honor. The programs tied with ribbons in the same colors were also at each place. At the head of one table sat Mrs. Wells, with the club president, Mrs. Minnie J. Snow, facing her. Mrs. Bathsheba Smith, a guest of the occasion presided at the other, and at the foot sat the toastinistress Mrs. Ruth M. Fox, and 30 guests in all, sat about the two tables. The president, Mrs. Snow, called for the reading of the card sentiments, each guest responding. This was followed by the reading of an original poem of greeting by Miss Josephine Spencer. Mrs. Zina Young Card introduced the toastmistress, Mrs. Ruth M. Fox who throughout resped successive laurels in her clever and apt speeches. The toasts were to the Press club, as a tree and the thought as a whole was taken by Mrs. H. E. Schiller who gave a comprehensive outline of the club in its various capacities, her subject being most cleverly handled.

Mrs. Minnle J. Snow responded to "The Germ," as "The Original Thought" and cold how potent the thought becomes when manifested in word, action and deed, flustrating it with the Press club, which had had so long a life and whose future might reap laurels of usefulness and renown.

"The Root," symbolizing "the founder," was happily exemplified by Dr. Ellis B. Shipp, who paid a tribute to the firm character and steadfastness of the Press club's founder, whose persistence and well grounded ability and sturdiness of purpose had sent forth the tree.

Mrs. C. C. R. Weils had an approthroughout resped successive laurels in sturdiness of purpose had sent forth the tree.

Mrs. C. C. R. Wells had an appropriate theme in "The Trunk," i. e., the organization, and in characteristic thorough style told her idea of the importance of completeness in this way. "The Club Officers," typified as "The Branches," was Mrs. Emma Jensen's toast, and was a compresensive summary of the importance of these parts of the club politic, Mrs. Lucy B. Clarke in "The Honorary Members," named in the program as "The Twigs," had a perverse and elusive theme. Application, she declared, to dictionaries, friends, and nature itself had yielded her ambiguous definitions of the difficult subject. Webster gave it as "a small growth" and other uncomplimentary references had rewarded her researches in other directions of that her loast had become a uncomplimentary references had re-warded her researches in other direc-tions, so that her toast had become a task of anxiety and misgiving. Finally she had thrust herself upon the heart of mother nature and had taken what, small comfort she might from the sug-gestion that these excreences might possibly in time become useful branch-es, with a far away inference of fruit. She closed with the hope that it might es, with a far away interence of fruit. She closed with the hope that it might be so and the term thus gain significance as a part of the whole.

One of the prettiest similes of the program was of the members as "The Leaves," given by Mrs. Florence Show Leaves." given by Mrs. Florence Snow Critchlow, who spoke of their offices of beauty as adornment for the bare branches of the tree, a resting place for birds, a harp for the winds, and a shade from the blinding rays of the sun, her picture being heautifully drawn and expressed. "The Results" as "The Fruit" of the tree was given by Mrs. Mary F. Kelly, who kept her audlence in taughter with her humorous resume of her portentious theme interluded with apt anecdotes as pertinent illustration of her theme.

resume of her portentious theme interluded with apt anecdotes as pertinent illustration of her theme.

"The Sear and Yellow" period was a suggestive "In Memorium" which was treated by Mrs. Elizabeth Wilcox in a beautiful original poem suggestive of the touching influences of time. The program ended with the presentation of a basket of violets and lilies of the valley from the club by Mrs. Maria Francis in an effective speech which reviewed the association of the members with the founder and their tender regard.

Mrs. Wells responded with feeling, expressing her appreciation of the manifestation of love which had been given her, and her reciprocation of the sentiment so feelingly expressed. She paid a tribute to the noble women with whom she had been associated all her life, and said whatever she had done was due to this, and their influence. She closed with thanks for the gift, and the sentiment for which the celebration stood and said that this was sincerely reciprocated.

At the close the president, Mrs. Snow, expressed an invitation to all present to become associated with the club, giving a brief outline of its present pur-

40,000 TREES FUMIGATED.

County Horticultural Inspector Sorensen Tells of Work This Month.

County Horticultural Inspector John P. Sorensen has filed the following report with the county commissioners in regard to the work of his department for the month of February:

In the month of February in one nursery, 40,000 trees left over from November and December were fumigated and partly inspected, also some 200,000 and partly inspected, also some 200,000 spedlings were tunigated. In another nursery 6,000 trees besides some small parceis was funigated and inspected and 25,000 young seedlings for grafting. There were six large parcels of trees, besides 2,000 rose bushes imported from outside the state, inspected and funigated according to law. A lot of United States government seeds, about 200 packages were received and distributed. packages were received and distributed and remailed. An article about spray-ing, which is essential that should be-come generally known, I also incorporate in this report for your consideration

Spraying as now conducted is of many grades and varieties. Most of the spraying is done to clean the trees of insect pests and to preserve the fruit the spraying is done to clean the trees of insect pests and to preserve the fruit from worms, scab and scale. But there is still some of the old style of work going on, which is simply to spray to comply with the law, never minding if it does any good or not. But that kind of work is happily decreasing and in another year or two will be a curlosity to find. But there is a great deal of work required to instruct people how to spray, what to spray for, when to spray, and what formulas and remedies to use in the different sprays for different pests, and how to mix up these formulas so they are not spolled in the making, always remembering that the formula of arsenic, though perfect for one class, is useless for another. For this purpose it is a necessity that the inspector or instructor is thoroughly at home and posted in these matters himself, and years are required to become an adapt and thorough on all these questions, and in practise as well as in theory.

The spraying that should be attended

The spraying that should be attended to from now in February until the buds begin to break here in Sait Lake and The spraying that should be attended to from now in February until the buds begin to break here in Sait Lake and surrounding valleys should be the so-called winter spray. Thirty pounds of fresh lime put in a barrel, then add 15 pounds of suiphur on top of said lime, now add 10 gallons of boiling water, stir half a minute, look out so you don't get line in your eyes, cover quick with an old blanket or carpet, invert a tub over the top of the barrel, put a weight on the top to keep the top from blowing off, now let stand say one-half hour, then fill your barrel with water, the harrel to hold about 40 gallons, strain and spray with it. Some advocate to boil the spray for an hour afterwards, but if made properly it is not needed. The heat generated by the boiling water slacking the lime is so much stronger than ordinary boiling heat that boiling afterwards is only a waste of time, except you have steam to boil with under pressure. This mixture sprayed on a tree so it is wet all over, will destroy all kinds of scale especially the dreaded San Jose scale, the elm scale, the cotton scale, the peach curl, the peach twig borer, the woolley aphis, the eggs of the green aphis, the red spiders it will destroy by the millions. It will also destroy fungus diseases, and cleanse the orchard from all pests that it can reach. The reason that all codling moth larva and all borers are not destroyed by this spray is that they are hidden away under the bark and in holes where nothing can reach them before the warm spring weather causes them to come out. We have no spray so generally effective for all purposes as this lime-sulphur spray. We used in old times to add 10 pounds of salt, but experience shows that the salt is not needed. Lime at 25 cents a bushel and sulphur at three cents a pound, makes this effective spray very cheap. Say about 1½ cents a salion.

MINING CLAIM DECISION GIVEN

E. A. Hitchcock, Secretary of the Interior, Affirms Land Office Action.

INVOLVING ANNA MARIE LODE.

Mining Property at Park City Responsible for Long Communication From Washington, D. C., Today.

Following is an extract from the deision of the secretary of the interior. of Jan. 24 last, in the Anna Marie lode nining claim at Park City, and reelved this morning, at the U. S. land office in this city:

Where several contiguous mining claims are held in common and expenditures are made upon an improvement which is intended to aid in the development of the claims so held, and which is of such a character as to redound to the benefit of all, such a general improvement is properly called a common improvement. In legal con-templation these terms import a single, distinct entity, not subject to physical subdivision or apportionment in its apdistinct entity, not subject to physical subdivision or apportionment in its application to the claims intended to be benefited by it. The entire body of claims held in common, the group as it is ordinarily denominated, not the individual claims separately considered, is the beneficiary on the one hand, while on the other, the common improvement in its entirety is the means or agency effecting the common development or the community benefit. Such benefit accrues and attaches to, and becomes available for, the claims as a body, not individually, by the very reason of the construction of the common improvement and as soon as the construction takes place. The physical act of sinking a shaft, or driving a tunnel, which is a common improvement, makes this so; not the certificate of the surveyorgeneral to that effect.

Where two or more persons own property in common each owner has only general to that effect.

Where two or more persons own property in common each owner has only an undivided interest therein, represented by no physical or tangible part of the property itself, but extending and attaching to the whole thereof. By a simple computation the value of such interest, based upon the value of the entire property, is easily ascertained. Likewise each claim of a group developed by a common improvement has an undivided, but nevertheless beneficial and ascertainable, interest in the common development work. By a calculation, based upon the number of claims in the group and upon the value of the common improvement, it is readily ascertained whether the equivalent of the required expenditure in labor and improvements for the benefit of each claim is represented in the common improvement, and whether more or less, and also what credit is available to such claims as are embraced in any particular patent proceedings.

TWENTY-THREE IN THE GROUP. TWENTY-THREE IN THE GROUP.

TWENTY-THREE IN THE GROUP.

In the case at bar 23 claims are embraced in the group involved, and the common improvement is valued at $4.600, as is shown by the record. Fourteen of these claims have been accredited with the sum of $200 each, from the same source, and three claims are accredited with nothing from this source. Such a method of arlf-trayily adjusting the credit to be derived from a common shaft, merely as to the exigencies of the case seem to require, is destructive of the essential idea inherent in the term, a common improvement. To undertake to set apart or apportion a physical segment or section, or an arbitrarily fractional part, of a common improvement and accredit the value thereof to a particular claim is in violation of the theory of a common benefit accruing from a common improvement. The scheme here invoked for adjusting the monetary worth of the benefit derived from a common improvement is, on its face, unreasonable and leads to a re-scheme here invoked for adjusting the monetary worth of the benefit derived from a common improvement is, on its face, unreasonable and leads to a result but little short of absurd. The department is of the opinion that it is unwarranted and unauthorized by, and contrary to, the law.

Equally, therefore, the arbitrary apportionments heretofore made of physical segments of the Silver King shaft to those claims already carried to entry, was in violation of this principle. As to all the company's claims which had been located prior to the commencement of the development project, which are contiguous upon the ground and which have been the beneficiaries of that project, the whole improvement or project is common, and each claim has an equal and undivided interest therein. If the Anna Marie is one of those claims, the full facts must be shown, whereby it may be made clearly to appear what claims of the group are embraced within the common development enterprise and what claims are particularly benefited or developed by the drift from the 900 foot level, in order that the due and full share of the cost or value of the improvements to which each is entitled may be determined. Before any further assignment of credits can be made out of the cost of the available improvements, or any of them, the number of contiguous claims having a common ownership, to be developed through or by means thereof, must be shown, conformably to the ruling in the Carretto case.

REASONABLE TIME GIVEN.

The company will be accorded a reasonable time, to be fixed by your office, within which to make an additional showing along the lines herein indicated. If a showing in all respects satisfactory be submitted within the time so to be fixed, and it appears to the satisfaction of your office, from the record as then made up, that the improvements relied upon to meet the statutory requirement relative to expenditure are sufficient in value, and of such character as to redound to the benefit of the claim in question, the entry may stand, in the absence of other objection, otherwise, it will be canceled.

As herein modified, the decision of your office is affirmed. REASONABLE TIME GIVEN

The papers are herewith returned.

In Everybody's Mouth -McDonald's Dutch Chocolate Bonbons

Yes, they are on everybody's tongue! And tongues are wagging about them. And the Dutch Chocolates are talking for themselves, 30c and 60c. And McDonald just saws wood and de-votes his energies to making chocolates exclusively—and he is even coating with chocolate the best selling old lines of raw
